This is one of the projects being led by the CU's Children, Youth & Environments Center Growing Up Boulder. Advisors, please read but do not help your advisees. Let them figure out the answer by themselves. The first advisory (send only two advisees, please!) that finds Ivette to give her the answer, will win a bag of candy!

True or False: Humans and giraffes have the same number of vertebrae in their necks. Choose your answer and be able to provide the exact number of vertebrae for each.
