>>Welcome Back to School - 2009/2010

As co-editors of the Thrive Update newsletter, we are excited to welcome everyone back to school! Last year was the inaugural year for the newsletter. We learned a few things and thanks to the feedback we received we are also making some changes this year.

One thing we heard loud and clear is that Thrive Update needs to have a better balance of articles for both elementary and secondary parents. We found that since several issues featured articles focused on secondary parents, elementary parents felt underrepresented. The editorial team is committed to providing more balance in the articles selected for future publications.

We have also revised our guidelines for articles and calendar items. All items submitted for publication in Thrive Update must relate to the mission – to empower families through scientifically valid knowledge to support healthy youth development. Article contributors are asked to balance their submissions for elementary and secondary topics.

As we rolled out Thrive Update in the spring, we began to focus on monthly themes as a way to provide some cohesion for the articles. For this school year, we have identified monthly themes for each issue and, while we will maintain flexibility with the regular features and articles, we will stick to the monthly themes so it will be easier to anticipate what Thrive Update will cover each month.

The themes are:

September: Back to School

October: Relationships

November/December:
Mental Health and Wellness

January: Technology Safety

February:
Physical Health and Wellness

March: Spring Break

April: Transitions

May: Summer

We know that Thrive Update is only useful if it's read. Therefore we encourage you to continue to provide feedback, both positive and negative. Your feedback helps us to make this publication a useful source of information for parents throughout the school district. We know that there are some very talented people with expertise in the areas we outlined for the monthly themes and would love to receive article submissions. This includes parents who have questions for our "Q & A with Dr. J" feature.

Thanks for your patience as we debuted Thrive Update and your partnership as we work to make Thrive Update a valuable resource for the Boulder Valley community.

>>SPOTLIGHT: Coalition of Agencies for Peer Education (CAPE) Seeking Youth Volunteers

CAPE (Coalition of Agencies for Peer Education) is seeking youth volunteers for the 2009-2010 school year. Peer educators provide informational and educational activities to middle and high school peers, gain valuable community service experience, and build leadership skills.

CAPE represents the following six peer education programs in Boulder Valley:

Boulder Youth Body Alliance (BYBA) – peers focused on creating social change around the ideas and messages contributing to eating disorders and body dissatisfaction. BYBA is a program of The Body Positive, a grass-roots, community-based organization.

Colie's Closet – education and awareness of the warning signs and risk factors of depression and suicide and how to help someone who is exhibiting signs of depression or suicidal tendencies. Colie's Closet is an independent youth-driven nonprofit.

Gateway Drug Peer Education Program – teach middle and high school students about the consequences and impacts of drug use and abuse, including tobacco, marijuana and alcohol. Gateway Drug Peer Education is co-sponsored by Boulder Valley School District, Boulder County Tobacco Education and Prevention Partnership (TEPP), and Boulder County Healthy Youth Alliance.

Peers Building Justice (PBJ) – education on issues of dating abuse, sexual assault, sexual harassment, and interpersonal violence. PBJ is a collaboration between Safehouse Progressive Alliance for Nonviolence and Moving to End Sexual Assault.

Sexual Health and AIDS Awareness Peer Education Program (SHAPE) – teach other teens to reduce their risk of contracting HIV and other sexually transmitted infections and to avoid unintended pregnancy. SHAPE is a collaboration between Women's Health Teen Clinic and Boulder County AIDS Project.

Youth Empowering Peers (YEP) – educate peers about equity, diversity, multiculturalism, and oppression issues in Boulder County. YEP is co-sponsored by the YMCA of Boulder Valley and Boulder County Healthy Youth Alliance.

The agencies of CAPE come together to share ideas and resources for providing leadership opportunities to Boulder's youth. For more information about CAPE and to apply to any of the peer education programs, visit the CAPE website at <http://bvsd.org/students/Pages/cape.aspx>

All youth interested in making a difference in their community, gaining public speaking skills, earning community service hours, making new friends and building their college resume should apply.

>>Celebrate Family Day

Monday, September 28 is Family Day – A Day to Eat Dinner with Your Children

Family Day is a national movement that highlights the importance of frequent family dinners in keeping kids healthier. Eating dinner together frequently keeps the lines of communication open. It's a great time to reconnect, learn about your child's daily life and their likes and dislikes.

The Seven Secrets to Successful Family Dinners (from casafamilyday.org):

1. Start the pattern of family dinners when children are young.
2. Encourage your children to create menu ideas and participate in meal preparation.

3. Turn off the TV and let your answering machine answer calls during dinnertime.

4. Talk about what happened in everyone's day: school, work, extracurricular activities or current events.

5. Establish a routine to start and end each meal. Light candles or tell a story.

6. After dinner play a board game or serve dessert to encourage the family to continue the conversation.

7. Keep conversation positive and make sure everyone gets a chance to speak.

Why are family dinners important?

It helps establish a routine time to communicate as a family. Research shows that girls who have five or more meals a week with their families are one-third less likely to develop unhealthy eating habits. The National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University found that the more often kids eat dinner with their families, the less likely they are to smoke, drink, or use drugs. And your child will know that no matter how hectic things get, there is a set time when they will be heard.

>> Positive Behavior Support Pilot (PBS)

Positive school climate is one of BVSD's highest values, and how teachers and administrators understand and deal with student behavior is key to upholding this value. To that end, we have good news! Several schools in BVSD are piloting the PBS or positive behavior support approach.

What is PBS? Simply put, it is a proactive approach to school-wide positive discipline and affirmations. PBS allows schools to establish a set of expectations which are taught, modeled, practiced, and reinforced by administrators and teachers alike. PBS provides a clear way for all of us to recognize the positive behaviors of our students. It teaches us to see when a student is doing what is expected of him or her, and to acknowledge that positive behavior in the moment. It also supports students who need extra assistance to reach our school-wide expectations of behavior.

The concept is research-based, powerful, and simple to apply. For example, at Manhattan MS the expectations of all students have been summed up in the acronym: RISE

1. Respect
2. Individual Responsibility
3. Safety
4. Equity

RISE provides an easy-to-remember and positive outline that encompasses virtually every aspect of behavior we'd like to see developed and practiced by Manhattan students. Rather than memorizing the traditional "rule book": don't run, don't hit, don't fight, don't bully, don't chew gum. . . don't, don't don't, RISE gives students a positive model to aim for, not to work against. Respect, Individual Responsibility, Safety, and Equity are very clear goals. PBS operates with the belief system that, in order for a person to excel, the goals must be positive and clearly set. As teachers and administrators, we can then begin to be on the lookout for students doing the right thing and reward them. This encourages everyone in the school—adults and students—to interact positively, which builds trusting relationships and elicits constructive behavior.

More good news: Parents can be valuable partners in making PBS work! Find out if your child's school is a PBS school. Oftentimes there is parent representation on PBS committees. Ask your child if they've earned any PBS tickets and how they earned them. Try this approach at home if you have not already. Research shows, it works!

For questions about PBS, contact BVSD's Positive Behavior Support Coordinator Kelly Miller at 303-870-7398 or Kelly.miller@bvsd.org .

Q&A with Dr. J.

Q: After the summer break, what are some suggestions on transitioning my student from a more laid back summer schedule to a school routine and avoiding the chaos that comes with early weeks of school?

A: Much like the calendar year, the school year also has a certain seasonality or flow. We now find ourselves at the beginning of the cycle, which provides a unique opportunity to set the rhythm for a successful school year. By doing this with intentionality we can address both the transition back to school as well as the inevitable adjustments to a new year.

Here are some strategies to consider:

Introduce ritual to mark the transition: Create an opportunity to focus on and celebrate your children's start in a new school year. Surprise them with a special meal; perhaps with their favorite foods and/or a special activity. Share your feelings of pride and excitement of the new adventure they are about to begin, as well as reflecting on the positive events of the past summer.

Provide an opportunity for them to share their positive and negative expectations: Our children have a lot to say if given the opportunity to express it. Let your child know that you're genuinely interested in knowing how they feel about the upcoming school year.

Normalize their concerns and offer your support: Help your child understand that it's normal to have apprehensions at the beginning of a new school year. Consider sharing some of your own school experiences when you were their age. Let them know that you're in their corner and will be there for them if/when challenges arise.

Check in with your child periodically throughout the school year: Instead of focusing only on the school projects, getting homework done, and being ready in the morning, encourage your child to share about their emotional experiences regarding school. Try to be less of a problem solver and more of a good listener.

Broaden your definition of "success": Try to remember that a successful school year is much more about effort than grades. In addition, be sure to emphasize and celebrate personal, social, and emotional growth as well.

By planting these seeds early on you will increase the chances that your child will blossom throughout the upcoming seasons of this new school year.

New Yearlong Lunch Calendars

Elementary and Middle School Parents, did you get your BVSD lunch calendar for 2009-10? Your child should have gotten one at school during the first week of classes.

It has a picture of bright red tomatoes on the front cover. If you didn't receive your calendar, please contact your school office. It is available in English or Spanish.

>> Invitation from the Parent Engagement Network

Parents, you are invited to become a part of our rapidly growing, dynamic organization ---The Parent Engagement Network (PEN).

PEN develops parent skills and youth resiliency by providing opportunities for connection, relationship building, and provision of research-based, best practice information on preventing high risk behavior and building community. It uses the 40 Developmental Assets framework, created by the Search Institute, and other strength-based approaches. PEN is committed to diversity and cultural competency as well as reaching out to the entire community.

Parent volunteers provide leadership and implementation in coordination with community partners and collaborators. PEN partners with Boulder Valley School District (BVSD) and local collaborator agencies, allowing PEN to offer education, resources, coaching, facilitation, and engagement opportunities that build parent skills, relationships, and sustainability. Hundreds of parents and community members have attended PEN events and rate their experience and skill-building highly. School-based parent volunteers provide leadership and implementation in coordination with community partners and collaborators. Eighty percent of BVSD schools participate with PEN through their school team leaders and school volunteers who take ideas into action at their schools through engaging events, distribution of information, parent mentoring, displays, book clubs and other activities.

PEN is a parent-led grassroots community movement that has received local and national attention for its interactive, positive approach to parent engagement. PEN has presented its successful model to national, state and local groups such as the U.S. Department of Education, Search Institute, Parent Corps and Assets for Colorado Youth.

As featured on the Today Show and a cover story in Newsweek in 2004, PEN began in response as part of a "Call to Action" by then BVSD superintendent of BVSD George Garcia, at the request of parents. PEN began as part of the Substance Abuse Task Force to encourage parent involvement in creating solutions to high-risk behaviors among our youth. The task force evolved into the Parent Engagement Network in 2003 after parent volunteers realized they wanted to engage the whole community in solutions.

Join us as we Kick-off PEN this September with the following opportunities:

>> Immunizations Update

Carol Helwig, MPH, Boulder County Public Health, provided a comprehensive review of immunizations in the March 2009 issue of Thrive Update (available at <http://bvsd.org/parents/Pages/ThriveNewsletter.aspx>) which we encourage everyone to read. The following article provides specific information about BVSD immunization requirements.

Immunization law requirements and board policy were reviewed by Melissa Mequi, BVSD Legal Counsel, at the July 2009 District Leadership meeting. We wish you to know the information disbursed as it may impact your student.

The state immunization law is: C.R.S. § 25-4-902.

BVSD Board Policy JHCB:

Students who do not submit:

1. A current certificate of immunization;
2. A written authorization signed by a parent or guardian requesting that local officials administer the immunization to the student, OR
3. A valid statement of exemption from immunization will not be admitted to a district school.

If a student attending a district school is not in compliance with the immunization requirements, the school nurse or designee must give direct personal notification of the deficiency... Notification shall be made by phone, in person, or in writing.

Within 14 days of this personal notification, the parent, guardian or student (if emancipated or over the age of 18) must submit either 1. a valid statement of exemption from immunization; or 2. documentation that the required immunization has been given to the student and a written plan for completion of all required immunizations in the future.

If the student does not submit either of these documents or fails to complete the schedule of immunizations detailed in the written plan, he or she shall be suspended or expelled in accordance with state law.

Exemptions may be granted for medical, religious or personal reasons.

Secondly, CDC (Centers for Disease Control) has recommended that the seasonal influenza vaccine be administered to all children aged 6 months-18 years as well as to the populations already recommended to receive the vaccine. Recommendations will be forthcoming for the H1N1 vaccine currently under clinical trials to prevent H1N1 influenza, but recommendations will likely include our students and families. Please strongly consider receiving the influenza vaccines (BOTH the seasonal vaccine and the H1N1), to prevent illness in your family and to prevent the spread of disease to your family and community. Thank you.
